THINKING OUT LOUD

By H. M. L.

For something over half a century the United States and Great Britain have been pals, friendly and cooperative. The last brush we had with the British lion, if memory serves, was during the Cleveland administration, when John Bull wanted collect a bad Venezulean debt at the point of British navy guns. We don't recall whether the British collected the debt, but they did not do it by force.

That international incident may have marked the turning point in history, when the Anglo-American friendship really became something for the world to reckon with. It has lasted through two world wars at any rate, and promises to last for centuries longer. There are those who will contend that the British owe Uncle Sam every thing they have left after the devastation of the late war. We don't hold with that school of thought. We believe very firmly if the British had not held fast in the most trying times of the war years this country might have had to spend more billions in money and some millions in human lives to save itself from the nazi horde. This contention cannot be proved, of course, but it does rank high among probabilities.

So when Winston Churchill, whom we regard as the greatest orator and statesman of this century, speaks of a common citizenship for the people of the United States and the British commonwealth, we listen with a sympathetic ear. In fact we think it might be easier and wiser to arrange an interchange of citizenship than to weld a hard and fast military alliance.

We suspect, and there seems plenty of evidences to document it that under the Roosevelt regime, we have been in an informal military alliance with the British empire for a good many years. The swap of 50 old destroyers for 99 year leases on British territory for naval and aerial basis, was not just born overnight. In all probability it resulted from informal discussions and understandings developed over a long period, something which grew like Topsy, a natural flowering of two democratic peoples speaking the same language and devoted to the same general standards of civilized living.

To go a step further now and give the peoples of each nation citizenship rights in both nations, barring of course the franchise to vote, would seem to us a sound way of bridging the narrow chasm that still lies between us. If that were done we doubt if a formal military alliance would serve any useful purpose. For, we can do more on an informal basis of give and take, common use of the navy bases, for instance, around the world, than by formally serving notice on Russia and the rest of the world that we two English speaking nations from now on are the protagonists and defenders of Christian democracy. It will be better if we exercise that function rather than proclaim t.

Looking back over the years, it would seem us that has been the practice whether or not published on world billboards, or the hoardings, as the British would say. Twice we have gone into wars that we and the British believed were righteous wars, and each time the initial steps into the blood bath were taken by our English cousins. And we did this without a formal military alliance. The truth is that we cannot see the "mother of paliaments" founder the doughty champion of all those rights we have established in our laws, go down in a general holocaust and ourselves unharmed and unashamed.

We are aware that the American Revolution, the War of 1812 and the unbrotherly meddling of Great Britain in our Civil War, still give ground for natiolalistic fulminations. These were black moments in the history of our relations with Great Britain, to be sure. But measure them against the long years when the British navy stoutly bulwarked our Monroe Doctrine in the New World. Measure them against our heritage of culture and laws defending individual liberties. After all we are still children and heirs of a race which has carried further forward the banners of a Christian civilization than any other people in recorded history.

GRASS VALLEY FIRE TRUCK STOLEN, DAMAGED

The Grass Valley Fire Departments squad truck was stolen last night with all life saving equipment aboard and partially drecked at the corner of Race and Auburn Streets when it was run into the residence of Clarence Briggs.

The truck according to Police Chief Ben Jenkins, was stolen from the firehouse next door to the Grass Valley City Hall and police station about 10 p. m. It was recovered a few minutes later when a call came in from the Briggs residence.

Aboard the truck was the resuscitator, oxygen tanks, gas masks, light generating plant and other valuable equipment. These were unharmed. The truck itself the chief estimates will need repairs vosting $300. The thief has not been apprehended. He made a swift exit from the scene following his collision with the house.

JURY DISAGREES IN BURGLARY TRIAL

The jury trying Bryan J. McCartie, 19, taxi driver of Grass Valley on a charge of burglary, failed to agree Saturday night at 9 o'clock after deliberating four hours, and were discharged by Judge Lowell Sparks of Placer County who presided.

McCartie was arrested January 4 on complaint of Dave Richards, the watchman at the New Brunswick Mine, one of the Idaho Maryland properties, who testified he had found the taxi driver hiding among the clothes hanging in the mine dry room about 7 o'clock in the morning.

Prior to the arrest, miners leaving their clothes in the dry room had complained of missing money and valuables from their pockets testimoney upon this was offered by James Jacka, millman, Melvin Lee, shift boss and William Brown, electrician. The defendant in his own behalf stated he had brought a miner to New Brunswick. The miner had gone inside, stating he would get his fare and bring it out. He didn't appear, so McCartie said he had gone in search of him and was found by the watch man in the room while he was looking for his missing passenger.

On examination of the contents of McCartie's pockets some hours after the alleged burglary, failed in identifying any money in his possession as having been taken from clothing in the dry room.

DAMAGE SUIT FILED AGAINST TRUCK DRIVER

Mrs. Clara V. Hansen, widow of the late John H. Hansen one time mayor and councilman of Grass Valley, has filed suit against Victor and Frank Fore for damages in the sum of $16,599 for allegedly injuring her late husband, as a result of negligence driving, to such an extent that he subseqnently died.

The complaint recites that her husband walking along Alta Street was struck by a delivery truck driven by Victor Fore with the knowledge of Frank Fore, a brother, on February 14, 1945. Hansen died in a Grass Valley hospital on April 10, 1945. The cost of his last illness and burial expenses is alleged to be $1500. General damages against Victor Fore of $10,000 is asked and $5000 against Frank Fore.

DEVELOPMENT OF MINE HOLDING TO BEGIN NOW

Fred Anderson general manager of the Ancho Erie Mining Company has announced that the company will start active development of both the Republic and Larabee veins south of Graniteville, within a short time.

This will entail two separate operations, he said. This together with Ancho which he also directs, should open an area which has lay dormant for many years.

The Republic-National vein can be traced on the surface for two miles and has been worked intermittently for several years by William McLean owner of the Graniteville Hotel.

Elizabeth Hutchison Is Borne To Rest

Funeral services for the late Elizabeth Hutchison who passed away Tuesday were held Friday afternoon from the Holmes Funeral Home with Rev. Joseph Moore conducting the services.

Many friends and neighbors attended the chapel services and Laurel Parlor of which she was a 50 year member conducted the services at the grave. Interment was in the family plot in Pine Grove Cemetery.

The pall bearers were William Hutchison, Harold Hutchison, David Hutchison, Dave Hargroves, Tom Richards and J. F. Stenger.

No Increase In Beef Ceilings In Sight

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson says there is no plan to raise ceiling prices for cattle as far as he knows, and that current prices may be better than they will be later.

Holding back marketable animals now may cause later marketing jams the secretary warns, which would tend to decrease prices. He also points out that any saleable animals held back now is robbing us of feed that we are going to need desperately during coming months.

Herbert M. Curnow Will Be Borne To Rest

Last rites will be said tomorrow, in the Hooper and Weaver Mortuary for Herbert M. Curnow, who died Friday evening at his home 635 Linden Avenue, Grass Valley following an illness of seven months. Rev. J. Rudkin will have charge of the service. Burial will be in Elm Ridge Cemetery.

Curnow was born in Cherokee, Nevada County, 55 years ago. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Curnow, early day settlers in that mining camp. He was a plumber and lived in Nevada City and Grass Valley nearly all his life. He was a member of the Hague-Thomas-Hegarty Post of the American Legion.

Surviving are his wife Mrs. Mildred Curnow, and four children, William, Robert, John and Joyce Curnow.

Mrs. C. W. Fairbank of Sacramento viited her mother on Thursday at the home of her sister Mrs. Leland Smith. Mrs. Caldwell is spending the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

GRASS VALLEY CHAMBER PLANS FOR EXPANSION

The Grass Valley Chamber of Commerce has announced its long range program providing for expansion of the city limits, housing, the street improvements ,transportation, recreation and eduational facilities.

Among civic improvements to which the chamber is committed is the widening of Mill Street, the chief business thoroughfare, by cutting down the width of sidewalks, extension of the city limits by aiding residential districts desiring to merge with the city, providing parking facilties and making a survey of house numbering and street marking.

Since the estimated increase in school enrollment indicates that it will double in ten years in the primary department, it is proposed to plan for class room additions and a recreational building to be used as gymnasium by the James S. Hennessy School. A junior college will also be one of the chamber goals.

The chamber will work for increased hospital facilities and ask that a hospital be built as a memorial to veterans of World War II the money to be allocated from the staff surplus funds as approved by the county.

Housing for the immediate needs of veterans is proposed with a long range program to take care of the city's expansion for the next ten years.

It is proposed to aid outlying residental districts, which have no transportation to obtain bus lines service, improve the present bus service to and from Camp Beale and to draw up a master plan for county airports to include landing strips in both Nevada and Sierra counties.

The chamber is now arranging for a dinner to honor on March 15th the new county farm advisor W. H. Brooks. The chamber announces it will back his long range program. Attention is called to the needed farm home demonstrator. The chamber will request the army authorities to turn back to private ownership some 38,000 acres of the Camp Beale cantonment if the army no longer needs it.

The chamber will seek adequate parks and playgrounds and work for a second municipal swimming pool and will aid the native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West in marking historic sites. It is proposed to assist in present plans for providing trails through the scenic areas of the county.

EDUCATION IN TRAFFIC HAZARDS BADLY NEEDED

Need for public education and action to prevent deaths from automobile accidents is emphasized in a report on the ten leading causes of deaths in California in 1945 made by Dr. Wilton L. Halverson director state department of public health.

Deaths resulting from automobile accidents jumped from 2677 in 1944 to 3527 in 1945 and moved from tenth to 8th place in the ten leading causes of death. It is the only one of the ten leading causes showing an increase in the death rate in 1945 as compared with 1944 with the exception of cancer in which the rise was very slight.

Only two commuicable diseases are represented in the ten leading causes; pneumonia, seventh place and tuberculosis ninth place. Excluding these and deaths due to conditions peculiar to the first year of life the other seven leading causes of death are accidents and the degenerative disease of old age.

NURSES TO HEAR DR. KARO

The Nevada County Nurses Association meeting at the Bret Harte Inn in Grass Valley this evening will hear Dr. Harold Karo who has lately resumed his private practice after serving in army hospitals behind the European battle front for many months during the late war.

IMPROVEMENT OF NEVADA CITY AIRPORT URGED

H. S. Foreman and H. F. Sofge of the chamber of commerce appeared before the city council with a request that $2000 be expended on the city airport on Cement Hill to take off a hump in the most used of the two runways.

Foreman stated that a contractor now available had agreed to reduce the airport to a firm level for that sum. The council was divided in its opinion but Mayor Benjamin Hall's objections to spending the money at this time prevailed for the time being.

The chamber representatives produced a copy of a letter from Rep. Clair Engle stating that the Nevada City airport is the best three in the county. The Loma Rica airport, belonging to Errol MacBoyle is No. 2 on the list, mentioned in the letter and the Gilmore Flying Field is No. 3. Another letter received from the Interstate Flyers Inc. of the University Airport of Davis was submitted to the council. This proposed a shuttle service to begin May 1st, including stops at Nevada City and fourteen other Northern California cities, linking them with Sacramento in two daily round trips. Flying both passengers and freight and carrying a total weight of 2200 pounds, passengers, freight or both.

The council adjourned until Tuesday night, March 12th when it will convene to consider changes in the local curfew ordinance to make it conform to the newly adopted county curfew ordinances.

Byron E. Brock contracttor appealed to the city council to take preliminary steps for incorporating tracts west of the city along the Nevada City-Grass Valley highway as far as Cashin Field. The board agreed to take the matter under consideration but advised that residents of the district must first submit a petition asking for annexation.

Councilman Charles Veale, stated that the small park owned by the Tahoe national forest on Broad Street adjoining the Alpha Stores, Ltd. with the permission of Guerdon Ellis forest supervisor could be used for parking purposes, provided trees and shrubs there were protected from injury.

Funeral Service For Felton E. Cross

Last rites were said this morning for Felton E. Cross who died in a Nevada City hospital Thursday evening. The services took place in the Hooper and Weaver Mortuary and interment was in the Elm Ridge Cemetery, Grass Valley.

Cross had been ill since early in February. He was born in Alabama 75 years ago. His vocation was farming and he resided on a small farm in Watt Park just outside of Grass Valley.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Harriett Cross and a daughter Mrs. Ruby Snow of Grass Valley.

Eric Ravn Funeral In Grass Valley Today

Funeral services will be held this afternoon in Grass Valley in the Hooper and Weaver Mortuary for Eric Ravn, who died in Stockton, San Joaquin County Saturday, following three months of illness. Rev. Jesse Rudkin will conduct the service. Interment will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Ravn was born in Sebastopol, Sonoma County 36 years ago. Most of his life had been spent in Nevada County where he was noted as a hunter, fisherman, and athlete, especially devoted in his younger days to football and basketball. He engaged in farming and stock raising.

The deceased leaves his mother, Mrs. Selina Ravn of Stockton, his wife, Mrs. Elinor Ravn and daughter Nita Elinor Ravn.

Elwood Stone, formerly chief clerk here in the Tahoe national forest service has been transferred from El Parde forest to Modoc national forest with headquarters at Alturas.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder when we demonstrate
Our grisley inventions,
If we can prove that we have no
Ulterior intentions.
And will the nations gather round
To gape and smirk and cheer,
Or will distrust and fear prevail
In lands afar and near?

I wonder at the behavior of our Uncle Samuel. After the first world war, he sent troops into Russia and threw his opportunities for world leadership away be refusing to join the League of Nations. Now we see him standing somewhat apart from his allies and singing, "One Alone" to an atomic bomb. "One alone" he chants "to be my own I alone to time its explosions. "One does not have to peer into a chrystal ball to understand the reactions to such a melody in lands beyond the sea.

I wonder what price atomic bombs. How much money went into the construction of our new weapon of human slaughter. What will be the cost of those far Pacific demonstrations of utterly unholy power.

First there is that little item of exiling the population of an entire island and setting up the dispossessed upon another island in the style to which they have been accustomed. To this add the cost of send sinding shiploads of helpless animals into the zone of experimaneation where they will be blown to kingdom come, together with many ships and other more or less valuable materials. I do hope the cows, pigs, chickens, etc.. that have been foredoomed to ignominious extinction, are all superannuated—too old and tough for human consumption, for if only half of them are young, tender and juicy, they should be sent in the form of beef, pork and white meat to the tables of Americans who have found it impossible to enjoy these luxuries ad lib for some time past.

Oh come, Uncle Sam, destroy that hedious weapon, which never should have been invented; it and the uses towhich it has already been put, constitute a smear upon Columbia's bright escutcheon. Destroy it before you loose the confidence of all mankind and blast the peace for which so many millions have suffered and died.

I wonder if we have heard the swan song of Winston Churchill Certainly the widely publicized speech lacked much of that for which we had been waiting. There was no inspired oratory and instead of a clarion cry for peace, it seemed a war cry, bold and defiant to be sure, but not tending to improve international relationships and bring about a general move forward toward the realms of peace.

Let all of us, think peace, talk peace and work for peace; ouly by so doing, can we turn the mind of the world from that "that "third world war. "and find the road that leads to something better and greatly more to be desired. —A. Merriam Conner.

STATION KNOX

San Francisco and the bay area may soon have a new 50,000 watt radio station operated on a community centered basis, if the FCC approves an application made by a group of San Francisco and Denver industrialists headed by Alvin E. Nelson, former NBC manager in San Fraancisco.

The FCC, pending a promised hearing, has reserved the call letters KNOX for the new station. The station, however, will do no "knocking" at all. Instead 50 per cent of its time will be devoted to non-sponsored civic, educational, cultural and religious broadcasts and its primary aim will be to discover, develop and publicize local talent. It will offer an outlet to people and organizations from San Francisco and all the counties around it who have something to contribute to public enlightenment or entertainment.

All of central and northern California looks forward with interest to the inauguration of Station KNOX, with its avowed motto of "No knox"—just boosts."

ELLIS SPEAKS ON MINE CLAIMS IN TAHOE FOREST

At the monthly meeting of the Sierra county board of supervisors Guerdon Ellis, supervisor of the Tahoe national forest addressed an attentative group of miners and citizens on the mineral policy of the U. S. forest service.

Stressing the point that much misinformation was now being printed Ellis pointed out that approximately 1-2 million acres of public lands were open to mineral entry within the Tahoe national forest and that over 2500 live mineral locations covering better than 100,000 acres were on record at the county court houses in the Tahoe area. Ellis pointed out that from the creation of the first forest reserves which were set aside in 1905 from the public lands (not private) minerals have been regarded by his service as a resource of the forest area to be used under existing laws and correlated with the other resources of timber, forage, water, wildlife and recreation.

As evidence of the understanding existing between the miners and the forest service the supervisor announced 74 out of 77 mining applications for patent totaling 30,000 acres had been favorably examined and approved by his department. Ellis further cited the adverse report which his department had made on the final application for patent by the railroad company which saved over 12,000 acres of claims to the miners which had been filed by them on the railroad grant lands.

Ellis explained approximately 1,200 miles of road, 1000 miles of trail and 600 miles of telephone line are kept open and passable through out the summer season by his department which benefits the miner and prospector in his search for valuable minerals. The supervisor added that if more road work was needed by the mining industry his department would be most happy to do it, and pointed out as the industry was able to present its needs to congress so would public funds be made available for the work.

FORMER RESIDENT PASSES

Funeral services under the direction of the Hooper and Weaver Mortuary were held in the Emmanuel Episcopal Church, Grass Valley Saturday or Mrs. Mary Marshall, widow of the late Thomas Marshall, for many years an accountant at the North Star Mine. Mrs. Marshall died in Berkeley. The services were in charge of Rev. Frank Buck. Interment was in the city cemetery.

Friends of Louis Popovich, formerly employed at the Lava Cap Mine, yesterday learned that he had died in Sacramento.

What a bank owes a borrower

Increasingly, individuals are following the long-established business practice of borrowing from banks. They are learning what businessmen have long known: that a bank provides dependable financial help at minimum cost whenever needed.

This trend has imposed an added responsibility upon bankers. Your banker realizes that a personal, home, or business loan may be the most important business transaction in your life—the outlet for a dream, a hope, a plan.

Bank of America—like other banks—welcomes the opportunity to take this larger part in the affairs of Californians—and wishes to review its obligations to these men and women.

This bank will continue to fit its loans to as many needs as possible. When new conditions or situations arise, Bank of America will develop loan plans to meet them.

This bank will maintain loan rates as low as sound business practice will permit. The bank will never forget that its first...and continuing...aim was to build a bank for all the people—and lower rates help to bring its services to more people.

Bank of America will continue to extend its complete facilities to even the smallest of California communities, so that "big city" banking service is not reserved for big cities alone.

BACKS BILL TO REIMBURSE GOLD MINES FOR LOSS

Reimbursement for capital and certain other losses sustained by gold mine owners and operators as a direct result of the WPB limitation order L-208 was advocated today by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

This position is a result of action taken by the board of directors of the chamber on recommendation of its mining committee.

The committee of which George B. Dodge is chairman is said to have had the plight of gold mining companies under consideration for some time.

Legislation to reimburse gold miners for certain losses resulting directly from the unusual WPB order has been introduced in congress by Congressman Clair Engle of Red Bluff and recently has been the subject of hearings in Washington.

Phil R. Bradley Jr. chairman of the state mining board, president of the Mother Lode mining association and a member of the San Francisco chamber's mining committee, attended the hearings and presented the local committee's report to the chamber board with Robert M. Searls another member of the group.

According to the report gold mining has contributed importantly to the economic growth and welfare of the city of San Francisco; the production of $50,948,485 worth of gold in 1940 in California was followed by the smallest gold production in the state since 1849, the production in 1944 being $4,108,055.

Operations of the gold mining industry were closed or curtailed in behalf of the war effort by WPB limitation order L-208 which subsequently has been demonstrated not to have been warranted, but which caused production to decline as indicated and caused mine operators and owners to suffer severe losses, such losses arising in many instances from the necessity either of maintaining the mines in an unwatered or timbered condition so that they could be reopened or of unwatering and retimbering mines which were allowed to fill or deteriorate because the owner's or operators' revenues were cut off by L-208.

Gold mining is the only industry which was formally wiped out by WPB regulations and sustained losses accordingly.

The general resumption of gold mining will be essential as a source of future employment directly in mining operation and indirectly in communities throughout the state that are dependent on gold mining.

Legislation is wanted which would reimburse gold miners for capital, maintenance and rehabilitation losses suffered directly as a result of L-208 but it is not proposed to cover the loss of profits, unpaid owners royalties or intangible losses incurred in building up or restoring efficiency of operating organization.

A. THURMAN IS CANDIDATE FOR REELECTION

Assemblyman Allen G. Thurman who represents Nevada County in the lower house of the state legislature this week announced his candidacy or renomination at the coming primary election to be held on June 4th. The incumbent is a newspaper publisher being the editor of two Placer County newspapers the Colfax Record which he has published for 25 years and the Placer Herald of Auburn, California's oldest weekly newspaper.

Thurman represents the Sixth Assembly district which comprises ten mountain counties. This large legislative district comprises one sixth of the area of the state.

Thurman is completing his fourth term in the state legislature. He was first elected to the office in 1938. During the nearly eight years he has served the district he has supported all legislation of vital interest to the district cooperating with the 4 state senators who represent the area in the upper house. He is a member of the following four committees which are of special importance to the district: conservation and roads and highways; fish and game; manufacturing and mining and ways and means.

The incumbent is the only newspaper publisher in the assembly which is composed of eighty members. Of the total membership in the 1945 session 26 were attorneys, 11 were farmers and ranchers and 8 were insurance men. Oother members included school teachers, accountants, a secretary of a chamber of commerce, a labor leader, a druggist and members from several other professions and businesses.

TOBIASSEN ASKS REELECTION

Announcing Wednesday that he seeks reelection in the coming Nevada County election is Sheriff Carl J. Tobiassen office holder for the past 12 years and prominent peace officer not only of the county but of the state as well.

"There is no substitute for experience" is Sheriff Tobiassen's slogan for the 1946 campaign based on the fact that he has served the county faithfully for 12 years and his organization consists of men experienced in law enforcement work ranging from 12 to 28 years. With the increasing amount of crime throughout the nation that is unprecedented in the history of the United States Sheriff Tobiassen offers the voters of the county the continuation of his long experience he has obtained during those 12 years of experience by not only the normal routine of duties of his office but the more technical aspects of the job he feels he is well qualified for.

Born and reared near Nevada City, Tobiassen has developed his work to the progress of not only his county but his state and nation. He reared his family of five sons and one daughter here, losing one son, Carl Tobiassen Jr. with the 1st Marine Division during the last war. Another son, Elton, also served with Uncle Sam.

He is an outdoor man, enjoys sports and outside activities, but nevertheless has keen business knowledge and in 1939 he streamlined the work of the sheriff's office offering this branch of the law enforcement agencies a definite assignment for each man that works under him.

Sheriff Tobiassen has taken an active part in peace officers associations of the state and is now the vice president of the California State Officers Association; he helped organize and has been a member, serving as president two years of the Nevada Sierra Peace Officers Association and the State Peace Officers Association.

During his 12 years of experience Tobiassen points out his office has handled thousands of prisoners and has not lost one man who was under arrest nor has the county lost any men in the county jail. Nevada County has less crime than any other county of its class in the state he adds.

"I stand on my record of conscientious performance of faithful duties and just and impartial deliberations. There is no substitute for experience the sheriff tells the voters.

MAY DEVELOPE SMALL HARBORS ALONG COAST

A series of small harbors all along the California coastline providing anchorage for light draft vessels, long has been a dream of California fishing fleets, yachtsmen and power boat enthusiasts. Today the project has begun to jell through start of an organized campaign to make the dream a reality.

Yachtsmen, fishermen and power boat owners have started the ball rolling at a series of meetings already held, and being scheduled. The small craft owners have requested the California state chamber of commerce to coordinate this campaign and sparkplug the initiation of necessary federal legislation for surveys and appropriations.

Already the state chamber through its natural resources committee its travel and recreation committee and its north coast, central coast and southern California councils has swung into action. All section of the California coastline were represented at a big meeting in Newport harbor arranged by the state chamber —and steps for new small harbor projects are under way in Sonoma and San Luis Obispo counties.

Frank M. Shay, San Jose chairman of the state chamber's central coast council, has written California congressmen requesting introduction of legislation authorizing an army engineer's study of harbors for the light draft vessels in northern California similar to existing authority in southern California.

Use of these light draft vessels harbors would serve two principal purposes. They would provide refuge and landing facilities for the commercial fishing industry. Also they would provide for recreation. Commercial fishing fleets landed a billion and a quarter pounds of fish in California ports last year. More anchorage and refuge would result in increased catches. Such harbors could also be used by small craft for recreational purposes.

PHEASANTS OF STATE SURVEYED

SACRAMENTO, March 11—The California Division of Fish and Game, which started extensive researches of the state pheasant popplation last April, is continuing them this year with funds acquired from the federal government under the Pittman-Robertson act.

The research is under the direction of Ben Glading game biologist with the bureau of game conservation who outlined the objectives as follows:

Proper management of pheasants in the field with relationship to agriculture which also includes a study of proper mowing practice, irrigation practice and rotation of crops to the advantage of pheasants.

Proper restocking program including: A review of past planting programs. Determination of when, where and what kind of pheasants to be planted in the future, and the possibility of using wild trapped pheasants from refuges to supplement part of game farm production.

Hunting management, including determination of the degree of hunting pheasants can stand and how the division of fish and game can foster farmer sportsmen relationships in an effort to open up more pheasant hunting areas.

FARMS IN STATE GROWS MALLER

Prediction of increased farm production on larger farms with fewer farmers by Clinton B. Anderson, Secretary of Agriculture is the reverse of the California trend according to a new study by the California State Chamber of Commerce. In the last 30 years the state chamber declares California farms doubled in number but the total acreage increase was under five per cent.

Thirty years ago California had 70,000 farms. In 1945 there were 141,577 farms—with slight difference in total agricultural acreage, the state chamber avers. The approximately 5000 farm holdings of over 1000 acres each total virtually the same number as 40 years ago—with much of the large holdings in range and nonirrigated mountain land.

Central Valley area farms of less than 175 acres increased from 49,000 farms in 1900 to 112,000 farms in 1940 according to Census Bureau figures. Rural holdings of under 175 acres were 68 per cent of all California farms in 1900 and 84 per cent of the 1940 total.

California farms have doubled in number in 30 years—yet the area under cultivation is precisely the same within a very small percentage. Prof. B. H. Crocheron, director of Agricultural Extension Service, University of California, has declared. The average California farm is getting smaller and I fear in some cases dangesously so for maintaining the American standard of living.

Forty per cent of California's farms are under 20 acres in size; many are under three acres. In the time of high prices as at present the tendency is to subdivide the land upon the theory that high prices will continue. I cannot find any statistics in the census or otherwise indicating that the large farms are increasing in number.

Farm acreages are cited by the state chamber in connection with the U S. Reclamation Law of 1902 limiting individual land ownership under projects to 160 acres. Most early reclamation projects were in unsettled public land areas much of the land open to homesteading in 160 acre tracts.

California's acreage limitation controversy stems from the diferepce between the Central Valley project and other reclamation projects, the state chamber declares. All Central Valley lands to be served have been privately owned for generations; privately developed into the world's most productive modern agricultural area. Two Central Valley projects irrigation features are only a supplement to the area already highly developed irrigation systems — many created through local initiative under California law.

For more than six months, your gas and electric company has been carrying on a consistent national advertising campaign to bring new business and industry to Northern California.

This advertising with colorful illustrations has been keyed to one dominant theme—"Northern California, the industrial center of the new Pacific World."

Four main objectives, important to every community in this area, have been the goal of this series of advertisements. These objectives are:

1. To hold much of the wartime gains of business and industry as permanent assets here.
2. To help in the reconversion and expansion of existing business and industry.
3. To attract new business and industry to Northern California.
4. To absorb in productive work the greatly increased population, the recently acquired force of skilled labor and the thousands of veterans who plan to live and prosper in Northern California.

Already we have abundant evidence that our national advertising has opened many eyes and minds throughout the Nation to the great future shaping up for this region.

This ambitious program is being carried on in complete cooperation with local committees, service clubs, industrial groups, chambers of commerce and other civic organizations.

We shall keep this advertising at work for Northern California well into 1946.

AN UNPRECEDENTED PROGRAM FOR LONG DISTANCE EXPANSION

Thousands of miles of new circuits will be built on the Pacific Coast

During 1945, we handled more than 346 million long distance calls . . . an increase of some 57 million over the previous year.

That means we handled close to a million calls every day.

To meet the ever-increasing demand, we are now making an unprecedented expansion in long distance facilities on the Pacific Coast. Thousands of miles of new circuits are being built; special vacuum tube equipment is being installed to boost the number of calls existing lines can handle; new toll and long distance switchboards are being added.

Yes, we're expanding long distance facilities in many ways and preparing for the many new improvements to come. We're on our way to providing a better long distance service than you ever dreamed possible.
